

Mass reenlistment brings General to Fort Bragg

Story and Photo by SPC Chad Seibold / 108th ADA PAO / October 2009

FORT BRAGG, N.C. – The sky was clear and the sun was bright as 32 Soldiers assigned to 108th Air Defense Artillery Brigade got into formation for a mass reenlistment ceremony held at Spartan Field here October 8, 2009.

The reenlistment ceremony was led by Brigadier General David Mann, the Commanding General of 32d Army Air and Missile Defense Command.

The Soldiers, who ranged in rank from private first class to staff sergeant, stood in front of a mass brigade formation to reestablish their commitment to their Army Family.

Of the 32 Soldiers reenlisting, nine had their Families proudly standing tall by their side and enjoying this special occasion with them.

In addition to the reenlistment, BG Mann also recognized 13 Soldiers for their outstanding accomplishments with a salute, handshake and a coin.

BG David Mann, the commanding general of 32d Army Air and Missile Defense Command, leads a mass reenlistment for 32 Soldiers and Family members of 108th Air Defense Artillery Brigade during a ceremony on Spartan Field October 8, 2009.